Cost of Discipleship

23rd Sunday in Ordinary Time

In the parable immediately preceding this Sunday's gospel (14:15-24, omitted from the Lectionary), guests were invited to a banquet three times, and three times they sent excuses. In this gospel, as 'great crowds accompanied Jesus', he turns and three times admonishes them that they 'cannot be my disciple' unless certain conditions are met. In view of the journey and its destination (see OT Sunday 13), it is imperative that those who wish to follow Jesus calculate the cost.

The costs are indeed staggering. The first and third admonitions require a would-be disciple to leave something behind: 'father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, and even his own life', as well as 'all his possessions'. The second admonition requires a positive action: to 'carry his cross and come after me'. Earlier Jesus had indicated the ongoing nature of this task when he said, 'If anyone wishes to come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me'. This is not for the faint of heart nor the impulsive. To illustrate, Jesus offers two brief parables.

Both parables feature individuals about to undertake a project: the first is a worker building a tower and the second is a king preparing for war. Whether commoner or royalty, foresight and prudence are required; the ability to see the project through determines whether it should be undertaken. So, too, would-be disciples must subordinate all other competing claims to the overriding demands of following Jesus. Nothing - not family, possessions, or even one's life - is more urgent than fidelity to Jesus.

In a sense the parables apply positively to God and Jesus: God undertook the plan of salvation with full resolve to carry it out even at the cost of the beloved Son's life; Jesus, too, resolutely determined to journey to Jerusalem to lay down his life. Neither God nor Jesus asks of disciples anything they themselves were not prepared to do.

Died after suffering four years of debilitating illness. Peter called himself "the slave of the slaves" and is remembered for his total devotion to their needs and dignity.

First Collection for the Clergy. Did you know that it costs $32 000 per year for each parish priest? The Bega Parish has had a long tradition of giving enough from the first collection to cover this cost & more. Since the first COVID lockdown the first collection has dropped & in 2021 only $23 500 was received. So far this year we have collected $19 000. Thank you to those who have increased their contribution. We have almost closed the gap. There are many ways to contribute - mass plate, TapNGo, credit card or direct debit. Please contact the office if you have any questions. Thank you for your consideration. Fr Adrian.
