Daniel and the Son of Man OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST

KING OF THE UNIVERSE
In his visions Daniel 'saw One like a son of man coming, on the clouds of heaven.' Though the 'son of man' usually refers to 'a human being' (Job 25:6; Isa 56:2; Ezek 2:1), here he is clearly a heavenly being ('coming on the clouds of heaven'). His appearance in human form is in striking contrast to four terrifying beasts (a grotesque lion, bear, leopard, and the fourth beast, unspeakably horrible) which represent successive kingdoms on earth. Each kingdom inflicts terrible harm on God's holy ones. Then 'the Ancient One' appears and takes his throne: 'his clothing was snow bright, and the hair on his head as white as wool; His throne was flames of fire, with wheels of burning fire'. His mere appearance destroys the fourth beast and deprives the others of their dominion. Then, this mysterious 'son of man' receives royal powers: 'dominion, glory, and kingship; nations and peoples of every language serve him'.

As this title is used in New Testament writings, the 'Son of Man' sometimes refers to Daniel's heavenly figure and is associated with the end times. He functions as God's proxy, exercising royal and judicial functions by establishing a just rule and executing judgment on both the righteous and the wicked. The royal aspects of this title are highlighted by this solemnity: in addition to the specific language in Daniel ('dominion', 'kingship'), Pilate's interrogation of Jesus in John's gospel concerns the kind of kingship Jesus exercises.

But this is not the whole story. The 'Son of Man,' in addition to the meanings described above (a human being, a royal figure of the end times), also refers to the suffering messiah. As we have seen (Sunday 25), the title 'Son of Man' is how Jesus refers to himself in his three passion predictions: it is associated with his suffering and death. Thus, even as we celebrate the dominion, glory, and kingship of Christ, it must never be forgotten that he is a King who reigns from a cross and whose crown is made of thorns.
