Jesus and Moses

THE MOST HOLY TRINITY

The choice of the first reading from Deuteronomy sets up both a comparison and a contrast between Moses and Jesus. The book of Deuteronomy is presented as Moses' great farewell speech to the Israelites. After wandering in the wilderness for forty years the Israelites, led by Moses, have come to the threshold of the Promised Land. Moses can look across the Jordan to the land they - but not he - will enter. There Moses once again takes on his greatest role as the spokesman for God who gives to the people God's Law. The first time he had done this was at Mount Sinai when he had delivered the Ten Commandments and all the laws contained in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers. Now, on the Plains of Moab, Moses repeats the Law for their instruction. This is, therefore, the second time he gives the Law: the word 'Deuteronomy' means 'second law.' Thereafter Moses ascends Mount Nebo where he dies.

In this gospel from Matthew Jesus, after his resurrection, goes 'to the mountain'; though the exact location isn't specified, 'the mountain' probably refers to the mountain of teaching in chapters 5-7 and the mountain of transfiguration/revelation in 17:1. There Jesus meets his disciples and delivers to them his farewell speech: these are the last words of Jesus in the Gospel of Matthew. Throughout this gospel Matthew had presented Jesus as the great teacher and the definitive interpreter of the Law who is greater than Moses. In this last speech Jesus is once again the teacher as he commissions his disciples to do as he had done: to 'make disciples' by 'baptizing' and 'teaching.' He instructs them to teach, not the Law Moses had given, but 'all that I have commanded you.' Jesus is the new and greater Moses, his commands are the new and greater Law. The gospel ends as it had begun. In the annunciation story Jesus was given the name 'Immanuel' ('God with us,' 1:23); he now assures them, 'I am with you always.'

Wise Words:

Commit yourself to great ideals, to the most important things. We Christians were not chosen by the Lord for the little things. - Pope Francis
