Lord Jesus, we can read in the Gospel of your attitude towards those whom others looked down on. Zacchaeus, the tax-collector, was rejected by others, but you called him by his name and ate in his house. You did not condemn the woman who was about to be stoned for adultery, but you called her to change her life. The woman who was drawing water from the well was there in the midday heat, cut off by others because she was a Samaritan. Yet she was one of the very few whom you told directly that you were the Messiah. You have told us not to be afraid or anxious, and you said that the last will be first. You assure us that, as God the Father even takes care of sparrows, we are worth more than hundreds of sparrows. We think of people being 'put down' or 'bullied' and we ask you this day, Lord, to remind us of the respect that each person deserves. Lead us to be as encouraging and positive to others as we would like them to be to us. Amen.

For God so loved the world...

John 3:16

Paul's message to the Corinthians of helping one another, being united, living in peace sounds very welcoming in the face of some horrors of our recent history. It is also a reflection of the God whom Paul encountered in Jesus Christ. He experienced a people who lived in a love. It is a love that knows God loved the world so much to send his only Son and the Holy Spirit to be with us and for us, for our salvation. Maybe it is not for what we think we want, but for our best.
