Media Release from the Australian Bishops Conference Regarding Malicious Emails, June 8 2020

The Catholic Church has denounced a number of malicious emails being sent to random recipients claiming to be from Catholic parishes, dioceses and other organisations.

In recent weeks, emails have been sent that mention one or more of the following: Cardinal George Pell., the complainant in his criminal trial, Covid-19 and, most recently, the upcoming Eden-Monaro byelection.

Fr Stephen Hackett MSC, general secretary of the Australian Catholic Bishops Conference, says that the content in the small number of emails is offensive, unChristian and, in some cases, defamatory. He says that the views expressed in these emails do not in any way reflect the views of the Catholic Church, nor the organisations that are purported to have sent them.

IT experts say that the technique being used is called 'spoofing', which sees the attackers create fake email addresses using legitimate or seemingly legitimate domain names. Fr Hackett explains that this is like someone sending a letter in the post that is 'signed' in someone else's name and contains a fake return address. Fr Hackett says that it is deeply regrettable that a number of people are being maligned in these emails which seem designed to attack Cardinal Pell, Witness J, the Catholic Church and now even politicians.
